Killed in action 10/24/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-24, 1918.
In several advances during this period Corporal Tennyson led his squad in attacks on machine-gun nests with conspicuous gallantry, always disregarding his own safety and encouraging his men, both by words and actions. On Oct. 24, while leading his squad in an attack on a machine-gun nest, he was instantly killed.

As Chief Consultant in Medicine of the American Expeditionary Forces, with untiring zeal he devoted his time, energy, and high professional talents in promoting the organization of eminent medical officers for the prosecution of efficient treatment among the sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces. Largely through his individual efforts, the treatment of the sick was so standardized, coordinated, and proficiently perfected as to result in a direct saving of many lives and a consequent conservation of man power and morale of these forces.

Distinguished Service Cross

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

With another officer and twenty-four soldiers, he was proceeding to the front line to establish an advance message center, when the detachment was caught in the enemy's counterbarrage. Although seriously wounded himself, he assisted in dressing the wounds of his men and then continued the work of establishing communication until he was forced to be evacuated two hours later.

British Military Cross

On the morning of September 29, 1918, Lieut. Thompson, Signal Corps, attached to 117th Infantry Regiment with First Lieut. Marrian, Regimental Intelligence Officer of this regiment and 24 men of the Signal Corps detachment were directed to establish an advance message center. They proceeded from headquarters to the vicinity of the J.D.T. and advanced their wire to this point when they were caught in the enemy's counterbarrage. Lieut. Thompson was seriously wounded in the head and slightly in the right leg. Even wounded and a part of the time in a dazed condition, he assisted in dressing the wounds of his fallen comrades. He left the detail about two hours afterwards only on account of being carried to the first-aid station by the Medical Corps. Lieut. Thompson underwent the dangers the same as his men at all times as he assisted them in repairing their lines both day and night. It was through his untiring efforts that the most efficient signal service has been maintained in this regiment. This was near Bellicourt.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Corp. Thompson, on the night of

Nov. 2, 1918, was in command of a liaison group between his company and the 103rd Infantry. While out with his group the enemy laid down a violent barrage which caused the company with which he was communicating to withdraw. He was advised by their officers to withdraw, but in view of not having received such orders from his own company, remained at his post. Due to the heavy firing his detail was not able to return, and due to all paths and roads being wiped out he was not able to be found by parties sent in search of him. He maintained his position with his patrol for two days and two nights until rescued by a detail from his company. In the meanwhile he had kept his detail well in hand and when found by the patrol, had all his equipment intact, although the men were absolutely exhausted.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
These two soldiers were with their platoon in the advance on Madeleine Ferme, on September 29th, 1918. Upon the withdrawal under orders to a defensive position 1 km. in rear, these two non-commissioned officers remained at their front line positions under heavy fire and helped out the wounded.

Wounded severely 9/28/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 28, 1918.
After having been wounded in the head by a piece of high-explosive shell, which slightly fractured his skull and rendered one eye useless, Captain Tilghman insisted on remaining with his command. Throughout the night of constant rain and continual gas attacks, he encouraged his demoralized troops, remaining with them until evacuated on the following morning.

French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star) An excellent driver, very devoted to his duties. He distinguished himself by unparalleled energy and endurance in assuring the removal of the sick and wounded to the rear for several days over a road that was constantly under violent bombardment. He had already distinguished himself before that.

Special Letter of Commendation
While serving on the Antilles, when that vessel was torpedoed and sunk on Oct. 17, 1917, he displayed coolness and courage in command of the forward guns, and delayed leaving until he was forced to dive from the bridge of the sinking vessel. He was active in assisting others to the life rafts.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Vaux, France, July 1 to 10, 1918.
On July 1, 1918, during the attack on Vaux, Mechanic Tomlinson injured his knee on leaving the trenches, and although suffering great pain, he made no mention of his injury. Later during the attack he assisted in the capture of two officers and five men. During the nine days that his company continued on duty in the front line Mechanic Tomlinson carried numerous messages to front-line platoons while exposed to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
On October 3, 1918, during the attack of Blanc Mont, he kept up the transmission of messages under violent artillery and machine-gun fire. Two of his comrades having been severely wounded, he administered first aid and remained near them until the arrival of the litter bearers.

Killed September 29th, 1918, during shelling of Field Hospital near Montfaucon. This soldier transferred a patient, whom he was carrying on his back, to another comrade after carrying him a short distance from the hospital. He then returned through the shell fire to the hospital, with the hope of evacuating others, but sacrificed his life in the attempt.

Killed in action 10/10/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
Without waiting for orders he voluntarily led a patrol against an enemy machine gun which was threatening the advance of our troops and delivering a severe fire into our ranks. By his skillful and courageous efforts the machine gun was captured. He continued to lead his men forward under the severe artillery and machine-gun fire until he was killed.

Distinguished Service Medal
While commanding the 111th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne operations, north of Verdun, Oct. 8 to 30, 1918, he distinguished himself by his energy, fearlessness, and high qualifications for the gravely responsible duties devolving upon him. The exceptionally effective use made by him of the weapons at his command rendered an advance possible against formidable hostile field works. His constant personal reconnaissance of frontline positions of the Infantry made possible an effective disposal of machine guns and artillery in the support of the efforts of the Infantry to advance and contributed in a large measure to the success of the brigade which his command was supporting.
29 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Displayed remarkable courage and devotion to duty October 1918 in the fighting North of Verdun, when he, by his coolness under fire and utter disregard of personal danger, was an inspiration to his men and when on one occasion he made a reconnaissance of the front line of the brigade under intense fire and secured valuable information for the brigade commander.

AEF Citation for Gallantry in Action
For gallantry in action in the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 13-14, 1918, in repeatedly carrying messages through heavy barrages.
2 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
The six men above named, heedless of danger and with conspicuous bravery, repeatedly carried messages through heavy and seemingly impassable enemy barrages in the Bois-de-Belleau on the night of June 10th and during June 13th and 14th, 1918.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
In the Belleau Wood on June 11, 1918, oblivious of danger, he displayed the most remarkable courage in continually carrying messages, exposing himself to violent machine-gun barrages.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
On Nov. 9th, 1918, the above named men all of Company "M", 61st Infantry, advanced from Lion-devant-Dun without artillery support in face of heavy enemy machine gun and artillery fire and captured Charmeis. They then proceeded toward Mouzay where they drove a battalion of the enemy from the town and captured it. This movement cleared the enemy from the east bank of the Meuse for many kilometers enabling the 5th Division to advance. This movement established a bridgehead for the 90th Division.

French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
On June 6, 1918, when his battalion was attacking the enemy near Chateau-Thierry and driving him out of Bouresches, he displayed the finest courage and initiative in securing very valuable information under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. He constantly risked his life in order to fully perform his duties, encouraging the men under his orders.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
In the attack of July 19, 1918, near Vierzy, he displayed great courage, and complete contempt for danger in advancing with his battalion over open ground under very heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
As battalion adjutant he rendered inestimable service to his commanding officer during the offensive from October 2-10, 1918. Remarkably cool and calm under the most violent machine-gun and artillery fire, he exposed himself bravely many times for the purpose of obtaining an exact knowledge of the dispositions of the battalion.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action

On the morning of November 4, 1918, in the Bois d'Etraye, Pvt. Viven, with another Private, dragged a machine gun into an advanced look-out post of the infantry line and fired upon an enemy machine gun position about 30 yards distance. He silenced this gun while under heavy fire from another machine gun on his flank. He then turned his gun upon the other machine gun and succeeded in silencing it in spite of rifle and hand-grenades thrown by the enemy.

AEF Citation for Gallantry in Action
For gallantry in action at Blanc Mont, France, October 3-11, 1918, in making repeated reconnaissances under severe shell and machine gun fire.
1 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Fearlessly exposed himself in the discharge of his duties, while directing the fire of his battery in a position being heavily shelled, until he was seriously wounded.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
He exposed himself with great courage in commanding his battery on open ground under a very violent enemy bombardment. Did not leave his command until severely wounded.
French Croix de Guerre (Palm)
He displayed excellent judgment in the choice of his positions, which enabled him to fulfill his missions with very light losses. He executed several perilous reconnaissances under violent shell fire, in particular at Blanc Mont during the period from Oct. 3-11, 1918.

Distinguished Service Medal
As a member of Base Hospital No. 18, in the prevention of the spreading of diseases at the base ports, and later as Clinical Chief of Genito-Urinary Section of the Medical Department in France, he rendered services of inestimable value to the Government. His untiring energy and unremitting devotion to duty, coupled with his technical knowledge as a professional urologist, were of material value and contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American forces in France.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
At St. Mihiel on Sept. 12, 1918 the above named officer efficiently and effectively maintained his position and led the advance of his command despite severe and intense enemy shell and machine gun fire. By his courage, bravery, and utter disregard for personal safety, he inspired his men and proved an example worthy of emulation. In the attack he was severely gassed and under pressure finally consented to go to the rear for treatment.
9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
During the third phase of the Meuse-Argonne Offensive in Bois-de-Faux the above named officer then commanding the Second Battalion, after an enemy shell had struck an ammunition dump, exploding a number of phosphorous grenades, personally assisted in removing the ammunition and extinguishing the fire. Thus by his absolute disregard for his personal safety, he succeeded in saving the valuable and much needed ammunition as well as preventing the possible loss of life among the soldiers in that immediate vicinity, had the ammunition exploded.
9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
Again at Clery-le-Petit on November 4, 1918 despite intense direct enemy shell and machine gun fire, he personally reconnoitered during the early afternoon for a favorable position for a forced crossing of the Meuse River that evening by his Battalion. While thus exposing himself to the enemy fire in order to accomplish this most difficult mission, he was struck by a piece of shell and instantly killed. By his courage, loyal devotion to duty and self-sacrifice, he served as an inspiration and an example to the members of his command.

5 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action While operating in the face of the enemy on the Argonne-Meuse Front, northeast of Cunel, France, on the morning of October 12th, 1918, the advance of their platoon being held up by vigorous machine gun fire directed at its flanks and machine gun fire from hostile aeroplanes flying overhead, also exceptionally heavy shell fire from guns of all calibres, regardless of great personal danger and hazard to life and limb the above named men showing exceptional heroism, did, on their own initiative, rush forward for over one hundred yards and help to kill or force the crews of two enemy machine guns to retreat, leaving their guns. Thus, enabling their platoon to continue to advance towards its objective.

AEF Citation for Gallantry in Action For gallantry in action near Sechault, France, September 28-29, 1918, in voluntarily joining the assaulting wave and advancing with them.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star) Being no longer needed as a telephone operator, he asked his battalion commander to permit him to take part in the attack in the first wave and displayed the greatest intrepidity during the assault of the trenches to the south of Bussy Farm, September 28, 1918.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-25, 1918.
In several advances during this period he led his men, regardless of personal danger, capturing a number of machine guns and prisoners. On Oct. 11 he was wounded, but refused to go to the rear. During the advance on Oct. 24 in the Bois-de-la-Grande Montagne the right combat group of his platoon being disorganized by artillery fire and several men killed and wounded, he displayed exceptional gallantry in reorganizing the remainder of his platoon and in re-establishing liaison with the units on his right, thus relieving a dangerous situation. He was killed on Oct. 25 while leading an attack on a machine-gun nest.

Distinguished Service Medal
In August, 1917, as sanitary inspector at Camp Funston, Kans., he initiated and perfected the organization and establishment of a standardized type of detention and quarantine camp, the successful operation of which resulted in the installation of similar camps in all large cantonments throughout the United States during the war. This original and constructive work of his had a marked influence in controlling epidemic diseases, then prevalent, and greatly facilitated the rapid mobilization and training of urgently needed man power. From January until August, 1918, as general sanitary inspector, Surgeon General's Office, he rendered services of the highest order. Later, while on duty in the hospital division of the chief surgeon's office, American Expeditionary Forces, as transportation officer in charge of hospital trains, ambulances, and the movement of sick and wounded within the American Expeditionary Forces to the United States during the period from January to July, 1919, he directed the evacuation of over 100,000 sick and wounded to the United States.

Distinguished Service Medal
As Commanding Officer, Watertown Arsenal, Mass., from January to October, 1918, by his indefatigable energy, great administrative ability, and thorough technical knowledge he planned, erected, equipped, and brought to a highly efficient working basis a new factory for the manufacture of 240-mm. howitzer carriages, as well as a new forging plant for large caliber guns - a definite contribution to the military power of the Nation. From November, 1918, until August, 1919, as Commanding Officer of the Ordnance Base Repair Shops at Mehun-sur-Yevre, France, he again rendered highly meritorious service in a position of great responsibility in salvaging ordnance material valued at millions of dollars and prepared it properly for shipment to the United States.

Distinguished Service Cross
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-16, 1918.
In the Bois-de-Consenvoye on Oct. 8, and in the Bois-de-la-Grande Montagne on Oct. 16, 1918, he ably led his platoon with extreme courage and gallantry and by his conduct inspired the men of his platoon to greater effort. This soldier led a detachment against a strongly protected enemy machine-gun nest and successfully took the position under heavy fire.

Navy Cross
For heroic and distinguished service at Vierzy, on July 19, 1918. As a Battalion Surgeon, 6th Regiment, U.S. Marines, when at his dressing station treating the wounded, he received a serious wound in his thigh from a high explosive shell. Disregarding his own wound, he continued dressing other wounded men, until they had been safely evacuated.

29 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Displayed remarkable courage and devotion to duty October 10, 1918, in the attacks against the Bois de la Reine and the Bois de Chene, when, with utter disregard for danger, he personally supervised the location of his machine guns, which had to be continually changed on account of heavy artillery fire, thereby making possible the defeat of enemy counter-attacks.

On the nights of November 6th, 7th, and 8th, 1918, he was in command of reconnaissance patrols, on Hill 360, east of Meuse. He displayed exceptional coolness under heavy machine gun and shell fire, accomplishing his mission and returning to our lines with a clear and concise report of his observations.

In the capture of the Bois de Rappes, north of Verdun, October 21st, 1918, was in command of Company C (15 MG Bn), which was to follow the assault wave. When the Infantry commanders on his right and left had been killed or wounded, Lieutenant Williams took command, reorganized the Infantry under exceptionally heavy machine gun and shell fire and with great courage and bravery led the men forward, secured the right flank of the woods and organized the position. He then went back under heavy fire, guided his machine guns up into position and consolidated the new lines which he held until relief on the morning of October 22nd, 1918. Throughout a very trying and critical time Lieutenant Williams showed utter disregard for his own personal danger and inspired great confidence in his men.

British Military Cross
Attached to 1/7 Battalion, Gordon Highlanders, British Army.
For great gallantry and devotion to duty during the fighting around Bapaume from March 21-26, 1918. On one occasion he moved forward across the open in broad daylight under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire into what was then the front lines in order to attend to the wounded there, and by night had succeeded in clearing the whole of the wounded. At no time after the 22d instant was it possible to establish an aid post other than in open, yet this officer at all times continued to receive and evacuate with untiring energy under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Wounded severely 9/26/18
Distinguished Service Cross
Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 10-26, 1918.
He displayed extreme coolness and courage while conducting the advance of company in the sector near Thiaucourt. He visited daily under heavy shellfire his gun positions and made daily reconnaissances of the lines. When wounded, he refused to be taken to the hospital until he had superintended the removal of his men to a place of safety.
French Croix de Guerre (Gilt Star)
He displayed the greatest courage and bravery under continuous bombardment and enemy gas attacks in the Thiaucourt sector from September 10-26, 1918. On September 12, although wounded by a shell, he advanced with his company very closely behind the infantry. He showed fine judgment in the choice of emplacements for his pieces. By his example and contempt for danger under trying conditions he sustained the morale and the ardor of his men. Wounded on the night of September 26, 1918, during a violent artillery bombardment, he refused to go to the hospital until he had given the necessary orders.

Distinguished Service Medal
As Chief Surgeon of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, he organized, supervised, and perfected the organization of the Medical Department in Siberia so as to meet successfully the complex sanitary conditions confronting the American troops. To his excellent judgment, untiring efforts, and high professional attainments is largely due the splendid efficiency which characterized the work of the Medical Department under his control. He handled in a masterful manner the organization of available sanitary forces to combat a threatened typhus epidemic in eastern Siberia. He rendered conspicuous service of signal worth to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

For distinguished service as Commanding Officer of the U.S.S. Benham, engaged in the important, exacting and hazardous duty of patrolling the waters infested with enemy submarines and mines, in escorting and protecting vitally important convoys of troops and supplies through these waters, and in offensive and defensive action, vigorously and unremittingly prosecuted, against all forms of enemy naval activity.
French Legion of Honor (Chevalier)
In command of the yacht "Wanderer", escorted coast convoys, engaged in action against a submarine at Penmarch; later escorted O.V.H.N. convoys, etc.

During the operations near Estrees, October 5th, 1918, while leading his platoon into the line he ran into a heavy enemy barrage and had thirty-two casualties. Lieut. Wilson worked practically all night under heavy shell fire, applying first-aid to these wounded men as no medical men were available at the time. His tireless efforts and knowledge of first-aid saved much suffering and the lives of many of these men. When the casuals were all evacuated he was ordered to take charge of the ration detail, it being impossible for him to join his command in the day time, and after delivering the rations he reported to his company in time to go over the top on October 7th, 1918. Although without sleep for 48 hours he led the front line of the attack with great dash and courage until he was seriously wounded. His untiring devotion to duty and able leadership is worthy of the utmost praise.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action
The above named men being runners at 1st Battalion Headquarters, 60th Infantry, did, during the Meuse-Argonne Offensive from October 14 to November 11, 1918, display great energy and devotion to duty by carrying messages from Battalion Headquarters to Regimental and Company Headquarters, most of the time under heavy shell and machine gun fire, thereby rendering great service to the commanding officers, and setting a worthy example to their fellow soldiers.

3 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Displayed exceptional courage in the Marne engagement, July 15th, 1918. Voluntarily left his kitchen to carry needed ammunition to his battery. Later, under heavy fire, he carried wounded to a dressing station, continuing this work until he fainted from exhaustion. Upon being revived he returned to his duties as cook.

War Dept Citation for Gallantry in Action
At Bois de Consenvoye, France, October 8, 1918, while in command of the 3d Battalion, 115th Infantry. On the evening of October 8, when the battalion had reached the normal objective of the brigade, further advance into the open ground beyond was prevented without heavy loss by an enemy machine gun located in a sunken road, which machine gun could not be reached by fire from the cover of the woods. Captain Woodcock, while endeavoring to find a way to silence the gun, located a 37-millimeter gun and two members of its crew, which gun and crew had become separated from the battalion to which it had been originally attached. Captain Woodcock personally led the men and assisted them in carrying the gun in the face of the fire of enemy machine guns from the woods to a place in the open field, where the enemy gun in the sunken road could be reached by enfilading fire. He directed the laying of the gun and encouraged the gunner until the enemy machine gun was silenced, thereby allowing his battalion to resume the advance.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
Private Wright was a gunner on an automatic rifle team on September 22, 1918, occupying an advanced position in outpost, and came under a heavy barrage from the enemy preparatory to a trench raid. By his marked coolness in the handling of his automatic rifle during the entire time, remaining in his position, he assisted greatly in preventing the trench raid being a success, repelling it at the outpost line.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
On the night of November 5th, at Bois de Ormont, while in command of a ration party, which was caught under heavy shell fire, he displayed remarkable courage and resourcefulness and disregard of his personal safety in bringing his ration detail through and successfully completing his mission.

Wounded severely 7/31/18 (twice)
Distinguished Service Cross
During a raid against a post of his command near Gildwiller, France, July 31, 1918, he showed fine courage and endurance when attacked with hand grenades. Although seriously wounded, he joined in a counterattack against greatly superior numbers and continued to fight, even after receiving a second wound, until the enemy was repulsed.
French Croix de Guerre (Silver Star)
On July 31, 1918, though wounded by a grenade at the time of an attack on an outpost of his company sector, he aided in organizing the defense. He was wounded a second time in the counter attack.

9 Inf Brig Citation for Gallantry in Action

On Oct. 12-15, 1918, near Cunel, France, the above named soldier, hastening back and forth over open and intensely shelled ground, carried messages for four days, utterly disregarding at all times his own personal safety. By so doing, his company was constantly kept in close contact with Battalion Headquarters.

79 Div Citation for Gallantry in Action
During a raid on our front line positions by a battalion of the enemy which had been preceded by 1½ hours artillery barrage, this squad of men held their positions under this heavy fire in the open, and by their rifle and automatic rifle firing, repelled the raid against them.
